

Bergenia 'Winterglut' ☼🌱 z8
15"x18" Magenta-red flowers

Bergenia cordifolia 'Winterglut' (Winter Glow) - located in Shade Garden Zones 3-8
Magenta-red Flowers Full sun, part shade Herbaceous Perennial Thick green foliage tinted red in winter Common name: Pigsqueak 15"x18"

You can experience how this no-trouble rhizomatous ground cover earned its common name of Pigsqueak if, following a rain, you rub a leaf between your fingers. But it is Bergenia's fine firm foliage mass and waxy Saxifraga-like flowers that justifies its presence in the garden.

With bold, rounded outlines, the great, glossy, and nearly evergreen, rich green leaves are a handsome backdrop for dense heads of fetching spring blooms that rise above the cabbage-looking rosette on stalwart red-tinted stems. In winter, leaves become tinged with burgundy and are most welcome in holiday arrangements. Native to Siberia, Bergenia endures neglect, poor soil and some drought, but performs best in part shade.

This cultivar features striking, red-painted winter foliage. Its substantial, slow spreading rosettes of beefy, heart-style polished leaves launch showy magenta-red flowers perched on steadfast stalks. Vaunting color aplenty, nearly 4-season appeal and an adaptable valiant bearing, Bergenia can be added to the rockery or a border's front lines.

<https://www.diggingdog.com/plant/P-1912>

<https://www.thespruce.com/how-to-grow-and-care-for-bergenia-4688589>

<https://www.waltersgardens.com/variety.php?ID=BERWI>

<https://www.greatplantpicks.org/plantlists/view/1931>